The Fight at Albany, New York, for the Possession of Mr. Lincoln—Rich Revelations.

Gov. Dennison was more successful in capturing the President at Columbus than Gov. Morgan was at Albany, if we may judge from the following extract from a debate in the New York Assembly, in which some amusing incidents are disclosed.

Mr. Ball, Chairman of the House Committee, to entertain the President, elected, rose to a question of privilege on the statement made by Mr.

Proctor in his speech yesterday, and went on to explain in regard to the programme that had been published in the journals. He stated that the programme had been agreed upon by a majority of the committee, and the statement of the gentleman from Kings was wholly untrue, and was simply a misrepresentation. These was a bitter contest in the committee, and under the probability of a legislative dinner, a portion of the committee contemplated resigning, but the member from Suffolk magnanimously withdrew his protest, and afterwards the published programme was agreed upon.

He continued to denounce the other members of the committee, denying that he had made any arrangement to dine at the Governor's.

Mr. Bergen then said that he was not necessary to this House the true position of the case.

In the first place, the meetings of the committee were held in the executive chamber. He could not get the committee to meet him elsewhere. From the first there was a disposition to entertain the President in the executive chamber. They were informed by his Excellency that Mr. Lincoln had been invited to dine with him, and decided to go to the depot covered by his feasters.

The Speaker called him to order, and said that it was not in order to speak of the action of the Executive.

Mr. Bergen—Is it not in order to tell truth?

He was only proceeding to give to the House some of the transactions of the committee, that they might be able to control them.

Speaker—Is it in order to speak of the action of any member of the committee towards the other, but not of the Executive; he was not made a member of this committee by the action of the House;

it was not in order under the rules to refer to him.

Mr. Bergen—I do not know what your rules are, but the Governor, by the action of your committee, was made a member of it, and therefore connected with and controlled its proceedings, as I intend to show.

Well, sir, at another meeting of the committee, the Governor, by a long letter to the President's clerk, inviting him to dine with him. Mr. Ball asked the Governor what was his reply? They were informed by his Excellency that the only reply received was that he was unable to do so, on account of the fact that he was in the city, and was unable to leave his office. This he stated to the committee, and the committee adjourned. The Governor then commenced buttonholing, endeavoring to change their action.

Mr. Fish rose to a point of order.

Speaker—The gentleman from Montgomery is out of order. At that meeting of the committee the gentleman from Ohio was not present.

Mr. Fish—My point of order is that the gentleman is out of order in referring to the action of the Governor.
